Required Duties of FPCs

A Federal Political Coordinator’s most valuable contribution to NAR is the relationship they develop with their Member of Congress. In addition to regular contact with the assigned Member of Congress, there are several specific tasks which are required to fulfill the role of FPC. Please check each item to acknowledge your commitment to these requirements.

Respond to All NAR Calls for Action

FPCs are expected to respond to ALL NAR Calls for Action they receive. As NAR’s key REALTOR® communicators with Congress, FPCs are looked upon as leaders by their REALTOR® colleagues and should lead by example. After responding to a Call for Action, FPCs should also encourage their fellow REALTORS® to do the same.

Advocate on Behalf of all REALTORS® and the REALTOR® Party

The REALTOR® Party is the non-partisan approach to moving forward legislation that is of benefit and value to all REALTORS®. FPCs must be able to remain neutral on the issues and remove their personal bias before advocating on any REALTOR® supported issue 100% of the time.

File a Field Report After Carrying Out Specific Actions Throughout the Year

Participate in Training as Required

All FPCs must complete required training whether it be in person or online. Being familiar with each NAR issue is essential to advocate on behalf of REALTORS® - this issue education will occur in the training modules.

Attend each Annual Legislative Meeting

Each FPC should make every effort to attend to lead the issue advocacy in their respective Member of Congress' office. This is the most important Federal meeting of the year and FPC participation is vital. FPCs will receive a travel stipend to cover expenses from NAR.

FPCs Should Support Their Assigned Member of Congress

FPCs may not engage in activities that support or can be perceived as supporting their Member's opponent, including but not limited to contributing to the opponent's campaign. Such activities may be the basis for considering terminating the FPC's appointment.

Periodically Send News and Other Information to Members of Congress

Communication is a two-way street. Being a resource to Members of Congress is an FPCs number one priority as they build and maintain the relationship.
